DELIVERABLE DIESEL PROJECT UPDATE

Subsequent to Service Hotline 192/2020 of 26 August 2020, this hotline serves to provide an update on the Deliverable Diesel Contract.

After careful consideration and as a result of comments received by various market participants and other stakeholders we are required to change the proposed Diesel testing dates.

As a result, customer facing testing will be halted until all procedural or contract specification changes have been finalized and signed off before testing commences to prevent a second iteration of testing.

In the meantime, the JSE will conduct further internal testing on the back of the proposed changes to the Diesel contract and related processes to ensure customer testing can go ahead as soon as the below items have been resolved and agreed to by internal and external stakeholders:

- Finalisation of the Diesel contract specification
- Presentation of any changes to the contract structure and operational process to stakeholders

Meta data preparation for Diesel will continue in the meantime – clients can still complete the G-PAY forms for accounts to be created on G-PAY.

We believe the above approach is in the best interest of all participants and ensures testing commences at the right time for the Diesel contract. The market will be kept informed on any developments and new testing dates.
