STOCK EXCHANGE NEWS SERVICE (SENS) SOLUTION REPLACEMENT

Clients are advised that the JSE has embarked on a project to replace and rejuvenate the Stock Exchange News Service (SENS) solution.

Listed companies are obliged to publish certain company information and price-sensitive information to the market. This information is published in the form of market announcements, at the agreed time. The announcements are published real-time during the trading day via the Regulatory News Gateway. In addition, a delayed feed of the market announcements is published via the JSE website and the JSE SENS Twitter feeds.

All the market announcements that are published during the trading day are also made available at the end of the trading day, for the benefit of parties that are interested in the SENS End of Day market data products.

Key drivers for this project are to address changing business and technology needs, client requirements and pain points. The changes will impact all stakeholders of the service from Issuers and Sponsors who submit market announcements through to information subscribers of the real-time and end of day market data products, including data vendor downstream clients who consume their data.

The project has kicked off internally at the JSE with a provisional go live date set for Q3/Q4 2022. We will soon start engaging and collaborating with clients on some of the key impact changes.

We will in due course schedule a project kick-off session via webinar to present and explain the high-level client impacts and provisional milestones.
