Dear Client

Further to Market Notice 273/2026 regarding the proposal to include Brazilian origin wheat as a deliverable origin against the JSE Wheat Futures Contract, the JSE would like to thank market participants and industry stakeholders for their valuable engagement and feedback during the consultation process.

The proposal received broad support from market participants and key industry bodies. After carefully considering the feedback received, the JSE has decided to proceed with the inclusion of Brazilian origin wheat as an approved foreign origin for delivery against the JSE Wheat Futures Contract.

As a result, Brazilian origin wheat will be accepted for delivery against the JSE Wheat Futures Contract from Monday, 3 August 2026. Deliveries of Brazilian origin wheat will be subject to all applicable JSE contract specifications and physical delivery requirements, including the current marketing season origin discount of R125.00 per ton.

The JSE also acknowledges the feedback received regarding the application of origin discounts to non-South African wheat delivered against the contract. The exchange will continue to review and assess the current discount methodology in consultation with market participants and industry stakeholders. Should any changes be made in future, they will be communicated to the market through a separate market notice.
